OHCA and OSU-OKC take CNA training program statewide

Oklahoma City – The Oklahoma Health Care Authority (OHCA) and OSU-Oklahoma City have expanded their certified nurse aide training program to qualified Oklahomans statewide. For people who qualify, the program will be available at no cost beginning in January 2007.

The program has been proven successful and will now be offered to Oklahomans statewide. Residents who participate in the program will earn certification and must gain employment at a Medicaid long term care facility for at least 12 months. Participants will also receive a set of scrubs. Students will be required to pay for an Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigations background check as well as TB testing. Students are required to pass the background check and the nurse aide registry screening prior to beginning training.

OSU-OKC will provide curriculum designed to prepare students to complete the state's nurse aide competency examination. The curriculum consists of 80 hours of training including 24 hours of supervised clinical training.

“Oklahoma’s long term care facilities that are in rural areas are particularly vulnerable to manpower shortages,” said OHCA Chief Executive Officer Mike Fogarty. “In the pilot stages, this program proved to be successful. We believe that taking the program statewide will create job opportunities by providing the training that is needed to work in long term care facilities. In turn, the program will also help the facilities by providing trained staff. It’s a win-win situation.”
